Pirates! Pirates! Pirates!

FOREWORD

The Pirate is traditionally a noble character, carefree and adventuresome. Such a mascot expresses the spirit of St. Charles High. He represents every phase of school life and therefore, is a meaningful symbol to all of us.

Follow us now as we, the Pirates of 1960, embark upon new adventures.

A "pirate," according to the lexicons, is one who is guilty of piracy. "Guilty," did we say? Does the ancient use of this term evoke from us a continued admission of our guilt? Indeed, to the contrary; for fortunately the art of language has a happy way of adjusting itself to new associations and to new meanings. So we in our student life now think of a pirate as one who draws from every possible opportunity, the potentials of success and achievement. Indeed the term "pirate" has a growing connotation that commands our respect, our loyalty, and our allegiance. So here's to the "Pirates" of St. Charles High School!

Robert Louis Stevenson's TREASURE ISLAND enters one's thoughts when considering the term PIRATES. As students, I hope that your treasures lie buried in good books, in searching for truth, in following precepts and examples of teachers, and by exercising good conscientious effort to recognize and solve your problems. Following this program will result in rich rewards and fond memories which will remain with you for many years.

Roy L. Clemons

Charlemo time means the close of another school year for most of us. Time to pause, take stock and evaluate our plans for the future. During the past school year we have each had one thing in common, an equal amount of time to use. I hope that most of you feel that this time has been used wisely to develop additional skills, earn worthy friendships, and strengthen your moral and spiritual character.

I believe most of you have learned the value of hard work. Your education is a lifetime assignment. You are your teacher — be proud of your pupil!

Mr. Burgur

Dear Johnny,

Dear Janie,

but can change to glamour when it fits the occasion.

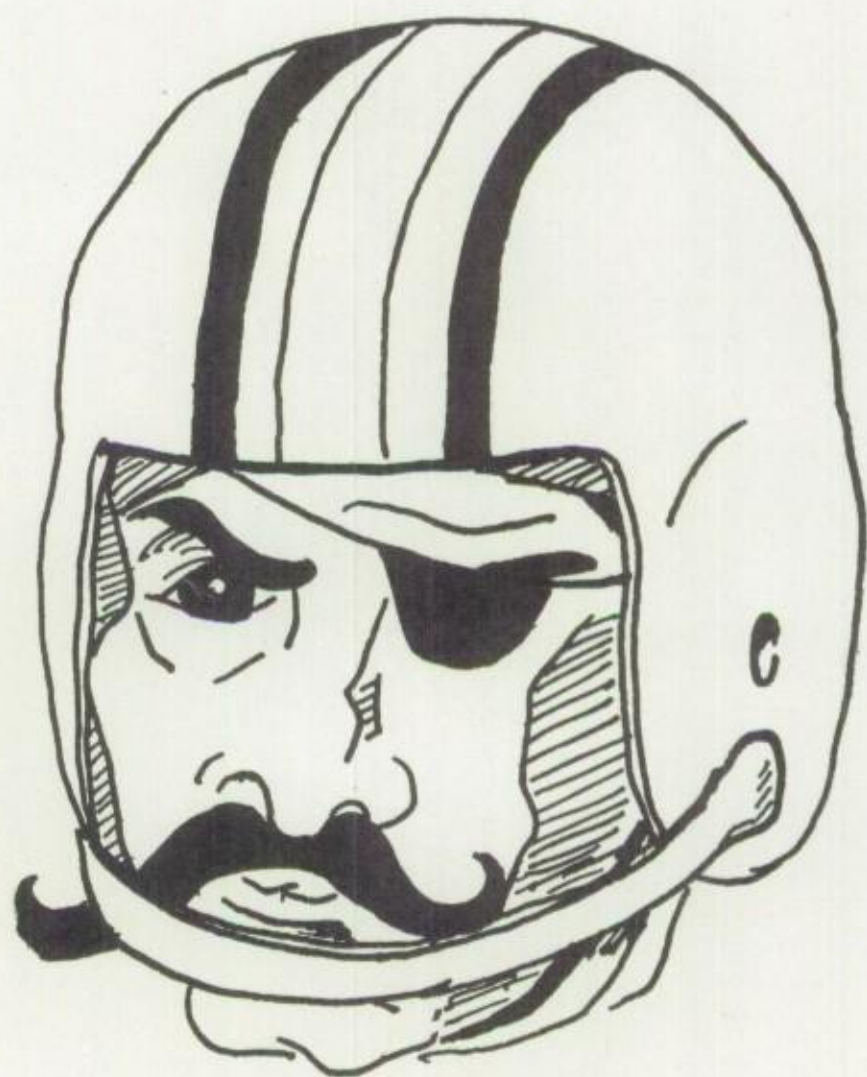

Yes, we're typical teens—go steady—about five months—dress up—heels for her—tie for him—we even know how to drive—rely on the family bus—get it—say twice a week—we snack, watch TV, listen to rock and roll while doing homework.

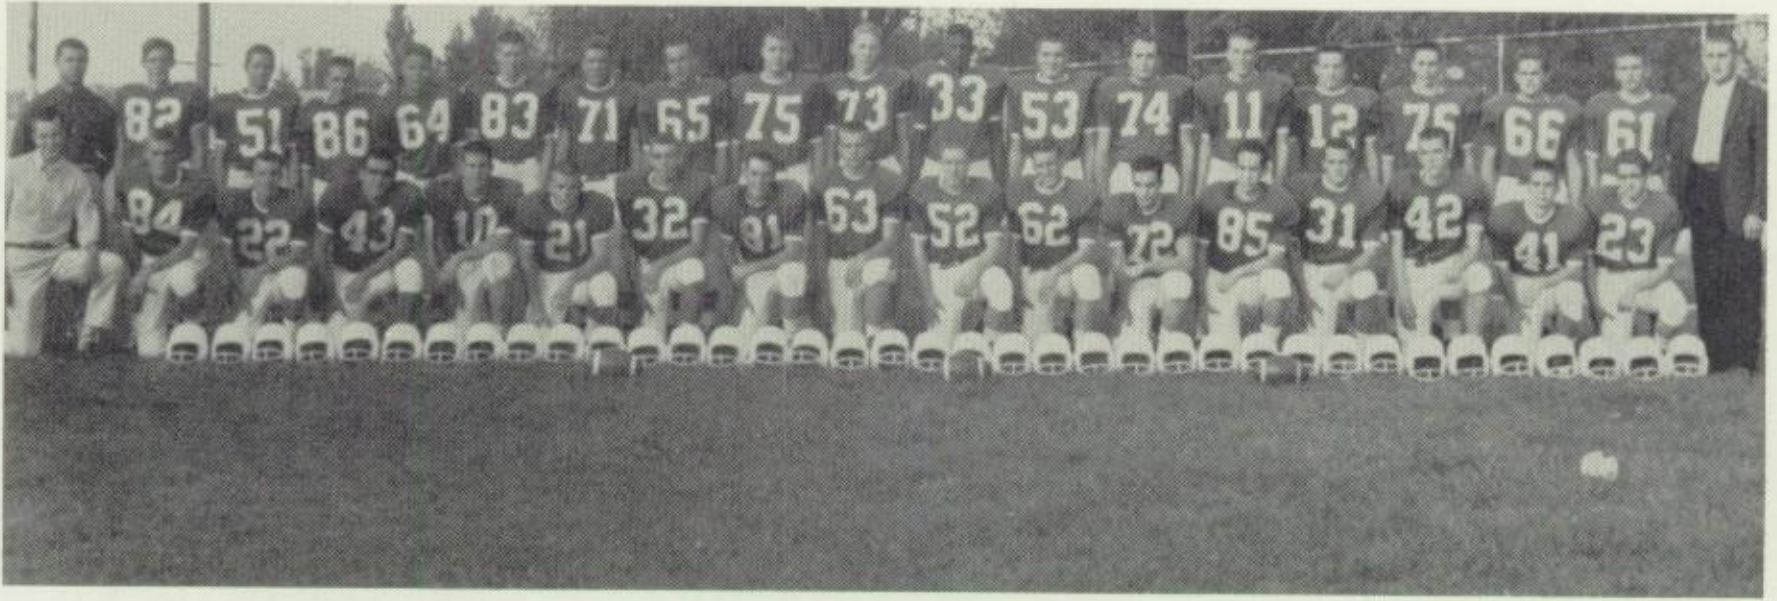

We're typical high school students—go out for sports one hundred per cent—maybe hold down a job—baby sit—sometimes into the early hours of the morning—we work in stores—garages—up late—little spare time.

Our daily schedule is a familiar pattern of high school life—get up at 7:00—maybe 7:30—sometimes oversleep—ride the bus—go at breakneck speed to cafeteria for lunch—drink cokes—munch candy bars and hot dogs—now and then we order a real feed—we enjoy school but hate to admit it. We study—three hours a night—no—a week—average "E"—well "M" anyway—we make the grade—just—but we are satisfied because we are teen-agers.
